For these nine months, we have lived an experience unique unto ourselves. An experience that never was before and will never be again. Whether we were aware of it or not, our every act, every word, became a part of the whole. Each of us influenced and was in turn affected by the year we created.

As in years before, we had a homecoming, we had a prom, we had exams, we had a yearbook, but this year they became uniquely ours through what we made of them. Our contributions, our thoughts, our reactions, distinguished our year from all others. The year we lived can never be repeated; it can only be recorded.

ACADEMICS

"Only the educated are free."
Epictetus

What does York Community High School have that ninety-five per cent of the nation's secondary schools do not? MICRO!

What is MICRO? It is a program of optional interest courses instituted, according to Principal Richard N. Stacy, primarily because "teachers were willing to share mutual areas of interest with students." Emphasis is placed on informality – no attendance is taken, no credit given. Participation of teachers and students is totally voluntary. Duration of a particular course is determined by the members involved; when interest lags, the Micro is dropped from the program.

Despite Problems, MICRO Stays

Several problems of this voluntary system were encountered during its first year in practice. Many students were denied the benefits of participating because of schedule conflicts. MICROS met only during the teacher's free hours; students who did not have a free period at the time the interest-class was offered could not attend. Moreover, only a hundred people took part in MICRO Phase I – was this low enrollment due to lack of interest or to poor publicity? The MICRO Coordinating Committee tried to answer that question through concentrated advertising during all-school Registration Week in February. Student Council, manning an information/sign-up booth in the cafeteria, also worked on MICRO publicity.

The diversity of participant interest is evidenced by subject matter. Titles of initial offerings included: Batik, Controversy in Today's High Schools, Decoupage, Discussion – Three Modern Novels, Finger Spelling, Introduction to Graphic Arts, Introductory Chinese, Knitting, Military Strategy, Organic Nomenclature, Peace Corps, Pinochle, School Problems Seminar for Freshmen.

Has MICRO proved worthwhile? That is the final question. While it is evident that the program has its difficulties, it should also be recognized that the administration is trying to make the school's curriculum more meaningful. Whether students will take full advantage of this opportunity remains to be seen, but in the words of Principal Stacy, "Micros are here to stay!"

Departments Make Changes

MICRO was not the only innovation around York during the 71-72 school year. Departments created options to meet student interest, as well. New electives with greater contemporary import (e.g., Environmental Issues, Afro-American Literature) and varied teaching techniques (e.g., team-teaching) succeeded in enlarging the educational scope of many students.

Prominent among the departments instituting such instructional changes was the Social Studies Department. Besides offering team-taught social science and American history classes, it created four new electives. Of these, two dealt with fresh approaches to an old subject – geography. Single semester Economic Geography studied natural resources and conditions in relation to industry, trade and commerce. The question of geography's effect on man's behavior and life styles was considered from the standpoint of historical anthropology in Cultural Geography Survey.

Culture was also significant to the study of delinquency in Criminology II, a course which compared crime in several societies. College-preparatory Psychology Seminar, the department's final addition, gave students the opportunity to research for themselves the major topics and conflicting theories of the science of the mind.

Scientific controversy of another sort was the focal point of the newly-organized Environmental Issues class. A team-taught Science Department offering, the course was concerned with all phases of ecological study – air, water, land and noise pollution, wildlife preservation, legislation. Incorporated into this "education for action" program were films, field trips, experiements and guest speakers.

The Science Department also added a flying course to its curriculum. The first semester, Introduction to Aerospace, gave background information of interest to all members of the Space Age. The more specialized Aviation Science, the second semester of the series, covered the technical aspects of flying and supplied all the training necessary for those who planned to take the written portion of the Private Pilots License Exam.

Changes Signify Academic Potential

Other departments also responded to the changing needs of the students. The Movies, Afro-American Literature, Mass Media and Drama 10 were courses originated by the English Department. In order to give more students a greater opportunity to learn specialized skills, the Art Department deleted certain basic pre-requisites; it also created Advanced Drawing, Sculpture and Color Design electives. The print shop was reopened by the Industrial Arts Department, which expanded its curriculum to include Graphic Arts. The Teacher's Aides program, sponsored by the Guidance Department, succeeded in giving York students a chance to view school from the other side of the desk.

What these changes seem to indicate is that, again, York is trying to appeal to the students' interests. Within basic fields of study, which must always be offered, there is much room for variety. At York, the potential for enrichment is becoming realized; improvements have been, and will continue to be, made.

ENGLISH

A little of Africa, the setting for some of the world's great literature, was brought to York through a study of Afro-American Literature. Studying attitudes of Black Americans helped students in this course to a better understanding of the Negro heritage. Another course, The Movies, initiated students to the behind the scene action of films, and gave students a chance to produce a movie on their own.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Shifting emphasis in the Foreign Language department brought added importance to the study of literature. With grammar and vocabulary established in earlier courses, upperclassmen were able to explore foreign poetry, drama and prose. Taking advantage of the cultural opportunities of Chicago, classes attended films and plays, learning from and enjoying these special "visual aids."

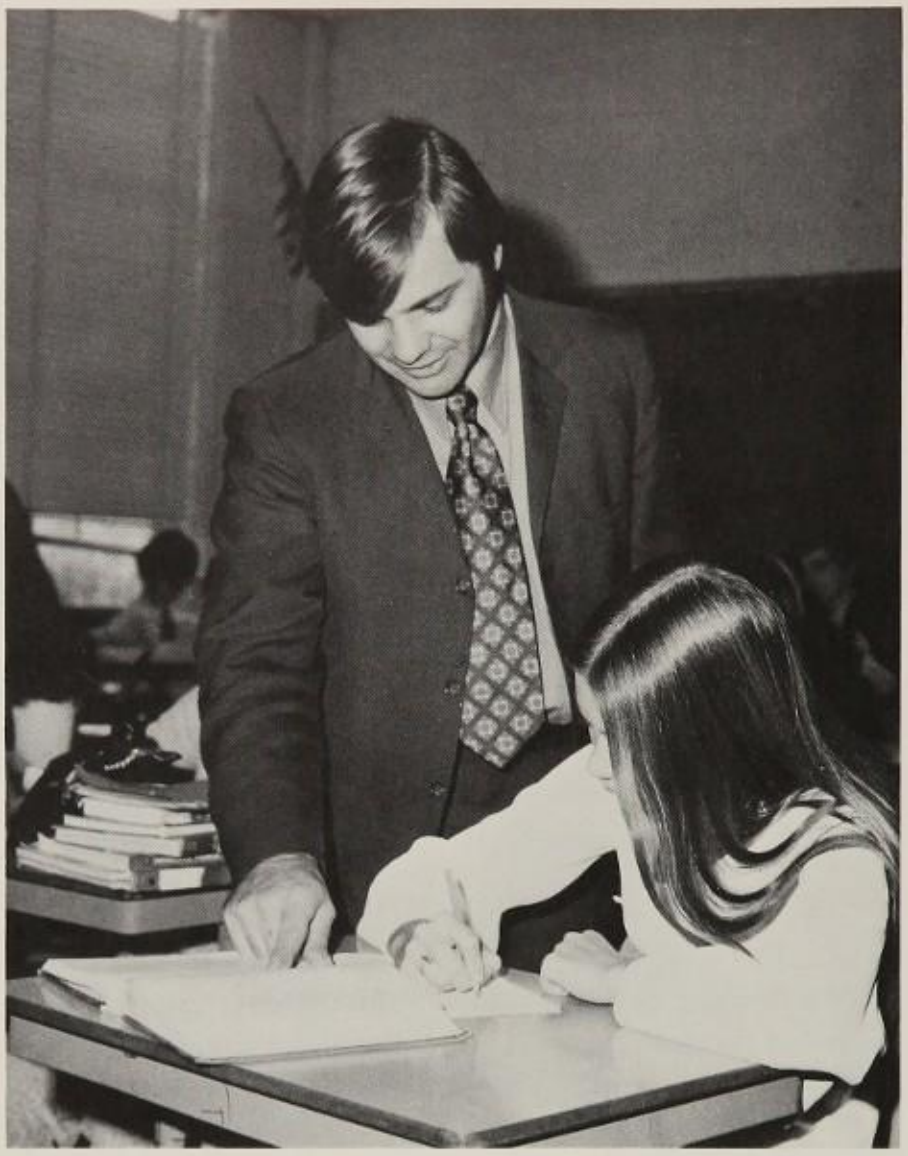
MATHEMATICS

The addition of a computer in the math lab aroused curiosity and student interest in computer programming as related to mathematics. For students without a free semester to take a computer programming course, a new mini-course was offered second semester. The course gave a quick but informative lesson on mastering the computer.

Individual study and achievement were further stressed by the continued pilot program in geometry, written by a York teacher. The course, an updated verion of Geometry 10, included such new and unique units as motion geometry, line reflection and rotations.



Right: Individual help can make mathematics a little less bewildering. Below: Students improvising with Venn diagrams demonstrate logic and set theory.

SCIENCE

Pollution: part of the solution is education. To inform students about man's effect on the environment and his endeavors to save it, team-taught Environmental Issues was introduced to the Science Department. Another phase of the new science program instituted flying lessons under simulated conditions. In the cockpit of a Link Trainer, students of Introduction of Aerospace and the second semester Aviation Science practiced newly learned skills.

Above: Verification of scientific statements entails careful observation and an accurate eye. Left: The wave tank aids these science majors in illustrating parallel wave properties of light.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Exposure to controversy was one goal of the innovative, team-taught history and social science courses. By sharing the views of teachers and classmates through lectures, discussions and panels, students became aware of the diversity of opinion regarding historical and social issues. Seminar courses in history and psychology also acquainted students with varying viewpoints which encouraged inquiry into subject matter.

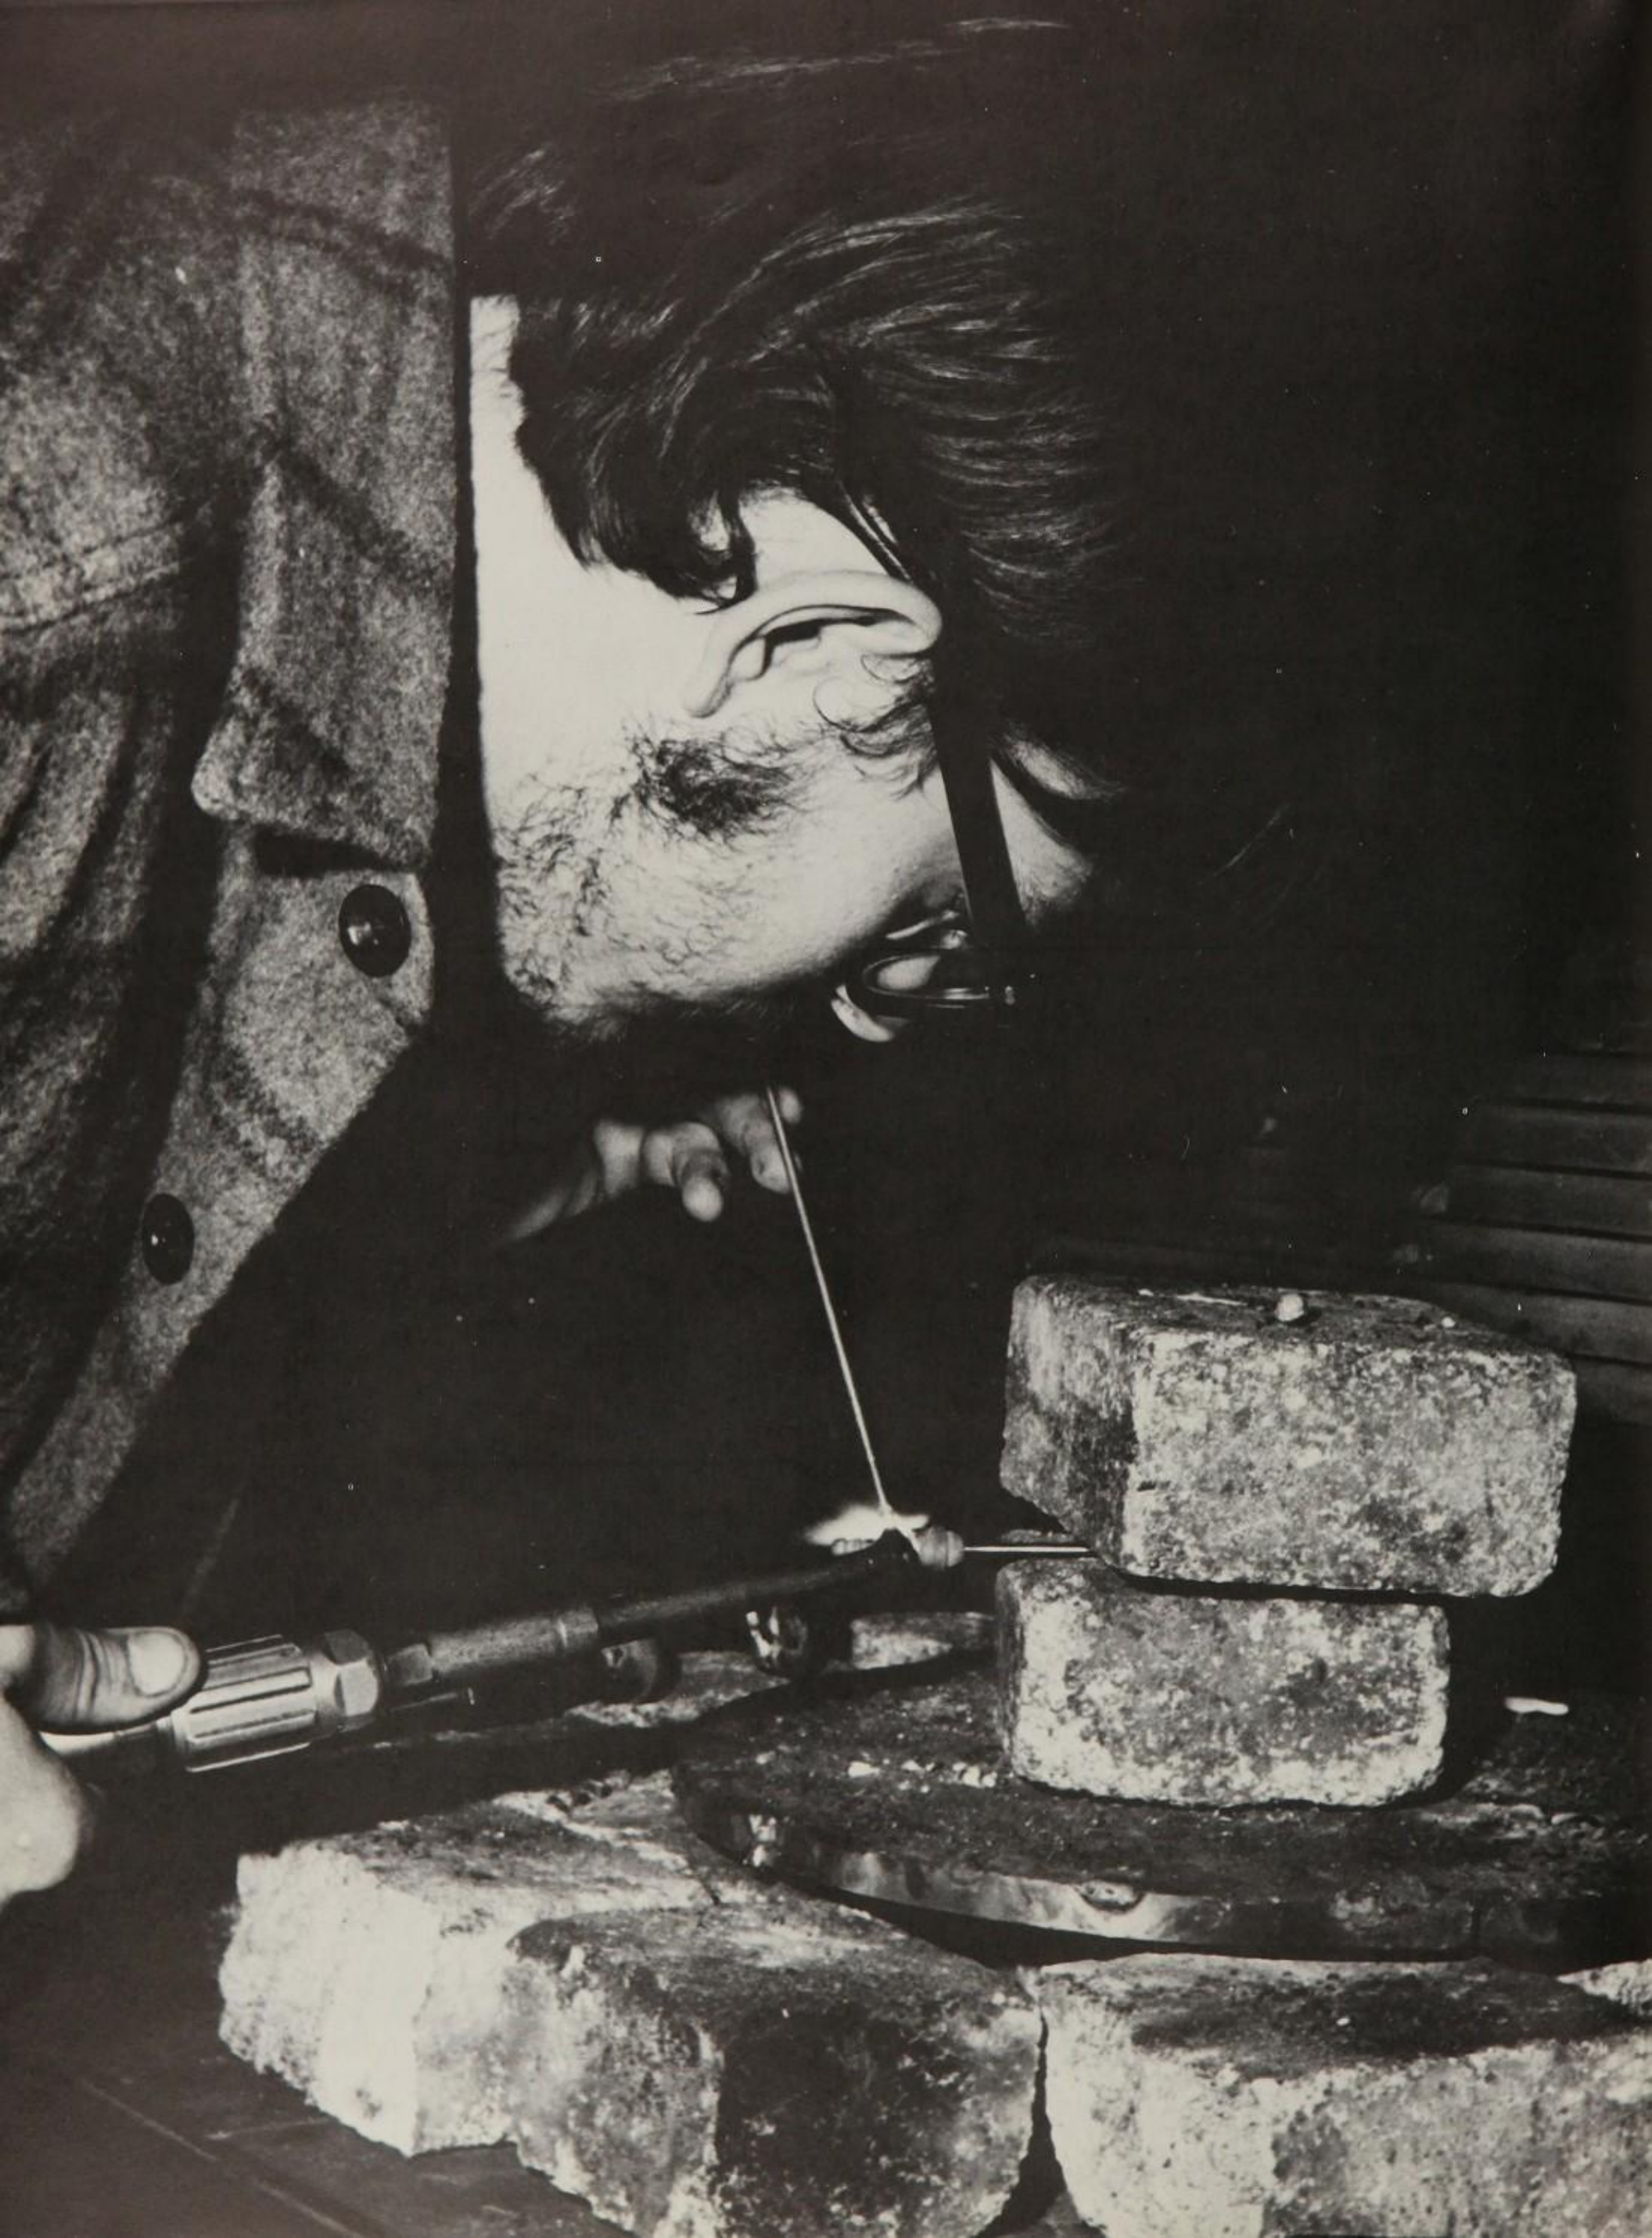
HOME ECONOMICS

Betty Crocker cake mixes are not the only part of Home Economics. This year courses of Child Development, Home Furnishings and Home Management added variety to the department's bill of fare. The Boys' Chef course cooked its way into its second successful year. Who knows, maybe the next face on the mix box will be a boy's.

Right: Girls use advanced sewing techniques to fashion quality tailored clothes. Below: To understand children, Child Development students must recall their own childhood days. Fingerpainting and puppetry lend insight into the child's mind.



INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Closed since 1969, the print shop was reopened to meet the revived interest in graphic arts. Students learned the skill of typesetting and applied it to the printing of course booklets, tickets and business cards. Your Home, a course in general home improvement and repairs, was offered for non-Industrial Arts majors. Instruction in auto mechanics, metals, electronics, woodworking and mechanical drawing was also offered by the department.

Left: A sharp eye, a steady hand and hard work combine to perfect students' lathe skills. Below: Time involved in manual labor is cut short by mechanical devices. Bottom: The oscilloscope, the instrument on which television is based, is one aid avilable to electronics students.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Salesmanship, clerical practice, data processing, and consumers' economics provided students with a wide background for business occupations outside school. Promoting wise budgeting of money, the Consumer Education course prepared juniors and seniors to cope with future financial problems.

ART

Under the talented hands of skilled sculptors, nondescript clay was transformed into artistic creations. Visual impressions covered painters' blank canvases. Lithographers with vivid imaginations engraved intricate etchings. Such specialized art classes, including Sculpture, Oil Painting, and Printing, were made available to more students by the partial elimination of traditional prerequisites.

GUIDANCE

Lining up for recess and taking off galoshes can be difficult for young children. With the help of Teachers' Aides, York students enrolled in a new Guidance-sponsored program, such problems were overcome at several grammar schools in the area. Teachers benefitted by having more time to spend with pupils and the aides gained experience in assisting a class. A second "guidance in the curriculum" project offered one credit per year to office assistants for filing, typing and helping students with CVIS.

LIBRARY

Providing more than the traditional reading and study resources, York's library was the background for many class and individual activities. The quiet, serene atmosphere lent the perfect touch to an English high tea held by several English Literature classes to celebrate the Christmas season. A collection of children's books for reference use by Child Development classes was added to the 25,000 volumes already on the shelves.

Left: Periodicals supply students with the most current information compiled on contemporary events. Below: Without assigned study halls, students looking for a quiet area to work flocked to York's four libraries.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

On the greens or down the slopes, girls from York's golf and ski conditioning classes perfected their skills. Although the Boys' PE Department retained its policy of assigning gym classes, girls could choose from among team and individual sport electives. Any boy engaged in a school sponsored sport was allowed to change his gym class if it was the same as his extracurricular activity. These options provided variety in the scheduled gym program.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Development of greater self-confidence and increased self-respect were primary objectives of the Special Education Department. Cooperative teaching and private tutoring played a major role in the pursuit of these goals. Through frequent field trips, stricter attendance policies and physical education activities, the theme of self-worth was promoted.

Right: Under the helpful guidance of private tutors, Special Education students are encouraged to increase verbal abilities through word-game competition. Below: A small, personal class environment allows for more individual attention.

VISUAL AIDS

Broadened communications facilities supplied teachers with a unique teaching program. Through the use of tapes and video recordings, pupils viewed prerecorded films and lectures. Make-up work, provided by student aids, was available to absentees who missed films and language tapes presented to the class.

MUSIC

"There is no music in Nature, neither melody or harmony. Music is the creation of man."

Hugh Haweis

Music Department Unique

The Music Department is unlike any other at York. While considered academic, it sponsors only one classroom course, Harmony and Theory. Although the bands, orchestras and choral groups – other musical offerings – are credit courses, they are classified as organizations, often with officers and activities such as any other club.

Under the general heading of "band," there are four groups: cadet, concert, marching and jazz bands. Performers are placed in Cadet Band and advance through auditions to Concert Band. Members of this group are additionally eligible to participate in the Marching Band. Jazz Band, however, is a separate organization with separate try-outs.

Similarly organized are the orchestras and choruses. Musicians rise from Training Orchestra to Concert Orchestra with practice and performance. Chamber Orchestra, like the marching band, is a subsidiary group. For novice choralists there are many options: freshman girls' and freshman mixed choruses and the girls' glee clubs. Acceptance into the elite choral organization, Senior Choir, is again on the basis of auditions. Once having achieved the desired membership in Concert Band, Concert Orchestra or Senior Choir, musicians may then expand their experience through various small ensembles, such as brass ensemble, string quartet, madrigals, or barbershop quartet.

And The Beat Goes On . . .

At the beginning of the school year, the music department began to prepare selections for the first concert appearances. For the band this debut came on September 25, the first home football game. Halftime entertainment, consisting of lively rhythms and a full color guard, was produced by Mr. LaVerne Reimer and the York Marching Band. In November the Senior Choir and Concert Orchestra gave their first performances, featuring a choral medley from the spring drama production, Guys and Dolls.

The band continued its musical support of York athletics by sending a twenty-five piece ensemble to each home cross-country meet and to the state meet in Peoria. With the start of the basketball season, band members crowded into the center gym balcony to provide entertainment for the fans and a medium for the Dukettes' pom pons routines.

The annual Christmas concert was divided into two separate programs so that all groups could contribute. Both afternoon and evening performances featured a scriptural narrative of the Nativity Story. The Senior Choir, directed by Jack Witmer, further spread the Yuletide spirit by greeting commuters at Chicago's Northwestern Train Station and shoppers at Oakbrook and Yorktown centers with seasonal carols.

And On . . .

In January, chosen members from the band, orchestra and choir traveled to Willowbrook High School to participate in the annual District 88 Music Festival. There, groups from York, Addison Trail and the host school rehearsed during the entire day for that evening's performance under the direction of three prominent guest conductors.

With February came the State Solo and Ensemble Contest. Soloists and various small groups performed for judges who rated them according to musical ability and quality of work. As in previous years, many of these groups brought home first place honors. In another contest, the Oaklawn Jazz Festival, the York Jazz Band was awarded a superior placement.

The various choral ensembles, by coordinating much of their free time in group rehearsals, were able to study the relationships of voice parts and harmony in greater perspective. Many of these ensembles had the occasion to sing for profit in jobs outside the courts of York. Among these were the madrigal group which performed at an annual luncheon of the Daughters of the American Revolution and a sextet which sang at a local wedding.

In an attempt to recruit new members for coming years, some of the choral ensembles, the Senior Choir and the Freshman Mixed Chorus visited junior highs and grade schools through-out Elmhurst. Younger students, while learning of York's music offerings, were thus given an opportunity to hear selected vocalists who had devoted much of their time to musical perfection.

And On . . .

The Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. James Plondke, accompanied the Girls' Glee Clubs for the March performance of Mendelssohn's A Mid-summer Night's Dream. The concert involved one hundred thirty musicians; soloists were provided by the Chamber Orchestra and Senior Choir. Soon afterwards, on March 17, the choir presented its own program of contemporary as well as classical selections, climaxing in a composition involving a double choir.

Meanwhile the band and orchestra members were preparing for their April tour. Profits from Christmas wreath and candy sales were added to the proceeds from the annual Spaghetti Dinner sponsored by the Bandors, the band and orchestra members' parents' organization. This made possible the trip to Washington, D.C., and Miami.

Something new for the band members, upon their return from Florida, was their participation in the Elmhurst College Band Clinic. Bands from five schools spent the day performing and learning from one another. Qualified judges then evaluated the contestant bands' presentations.

Long rehearsals involving the choir and orchestra finally came to a conclusion on June second, as the difficult Requiem by Gabriel Faure was presented in Hammerschmidt Chapel of Elmhurst College. The farewell performance was given by Senior Choir who sang at Baccalaureate services for graduating seniors.

Are Clubs Dead at York?

No, clubs are not dead at York. Dealt a hard blow by austerity and split shifts, these organizations suffered a two-year decline but now seem to be reviving. The problems of renewed growth are many, however, and clubs have been forced to either adapt to the new system or dissolve. Many organizations have survived the upheavals and are thriving—others have succumbed.

Clubs are troubled with two major problems: split shifts and a decrease in student interest. The 88 plan has seriously hindered many organizations, notably, Student Council. The happy convenience of homerooms for representation to the student government ended in 1970 when these study halls were abolished. Unable to act quickly enough, Council found itself disbanded, its constitution suddenly obsolete. A semester-long Ad Hoc Committee drew up a new format for representation but this revised system was also inadequate. This year, Council met daily in a scheduled time period with members elected at-large, but effective student-representative communication was hampered. As such communication is the very heart of student government, Council's immediate goal is to restore it. The future success of Student Council depends on its ability to further adapt to its new environment.

On the other side of the coin, many clubs have been thriving under the system of increased student independence and the less structured school day. The Girls' Athletic Association has become so popular that it does not have enough facilities for the number of girls wanting to join. More free time has made it possible for girls to become involved in organized sports. Also prospering this year, the business clubs, Office Occupations and Distributive Education have begun interschool competition in business skills and have engineered two very successful fund-raising drives.

Clubs: New and Old

Since the advent of the 88 plan, more than a half-dozen clubs have disbanded (though, certainly, this cannot be attributed solely to the new system) yet others have sprung up to take their places. Biology Club faded away as members could not find a time to meet, yet Gymnastics Club has, in one year, become one of York's largest groups. Radio and Stamp and Coin Clubs dissolved in a mix-up over sponsors but Weather Command and Photography Club quickly found advisors and began operations during the year.

Undoubtedly, split shifts have created problems for clubs here at York. This is inevitable as clubs meet after school; yet now there is not one time period that is "after school" for all. Many groups have been forced to meet after the final period of the day or in the evening, causing members great inconvenience and discouraging many prospective members. Students were unwilling to stay three or four periods in school with little or nothing to do, waiting for meetings. Taking advantage of extra time, some students found jobs which precluded extra-curricular activities.

It is obvious, however, that the problems of the 88 plan can be overcome by determined groups. Theatrical activities have grown at a tremendous rate, involving a record number of people on cast and crews. Plays such as Hello Dolly! and Guys and Dolls use scores of students just as players. The traditional three yearly plays were joined by special Thespian dramas including their production of A Three-Penny Christmas.

The traditional Weihnachsfest celebration by German Club has become larger in recent years. The American Field Service chapter at York, faced with desperate financial need (thousands of dollars are necessary for exchange students) has instituted a very popular donkey basketball game that may well become a York tradition. Orchesis continued its annual dance presentation. The York-Hi printed two extra issues and the yearbook added eight pages! Other clubs enjoyed similarly successful years.

Are Clubs Dying at York?

What, then, is the status of clubs at York? Some could not survive the changes in the school while others thrive on them. There are trends, however, that can be determined in the confusion. Student interest in clubs as a social instrument has greatly lessened. Unlike years ago, the independent and mobile student of 1972 does not look upon school as a focal point for all his activities. Groups for fun and a sense of togetherness can be easily formed outside school, a decided difference from the past. Responding to students' desires, clubs have become increasingly specialized. They have become groups whose purpose is to provide members with an opportunity to pursue certain interests.

These interests, too, constantly shift with time. The specialized Historical Society has given way to the equally specialized Ski Club. This Shifting has not ended here either. Undoubtedly, more clubs will die and others will replace them in the future.

The prospects of any given club, then, may be uncertain, but that of organizations as a whole is sure. As long as students are willing to work with others pursuing a common interest, York's clubs will continue to serve an invaluable function.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Meeting as a daily class rather than in weekly meeting, Student Council changed with the times. Reform brought change in representation as ten delegates from each class were elected at-large. Council sponsored a voter registration drive and a mock presidential primary in this national election year, increasing students' interest in and understanding of voter responsibilities.

AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE

Australia, Belgium, Colombia, Germany and Viet Nam were represented at York by five foreign students who spent the year living with Elmhurst families. Several different exchange programs sponsored these young ambassadors who gave York students a chance to learn about different cultures while promoting international understanding.

The most active of the programs was the American Field Service. The AFS Committee raised money to sponsor two of the foreign students and to send two York students abroad for the summer. Careful selection through interviews and screenings insured success for the travel program.

INTERCLUB COUNCIL

Working in conjunction with York – sponsored organizations, Interclub Council strove to remedy dwindling student participation in clubs. To generate interest, ICC members organized Club-O-Rama, an informal seminar that facilitated students' decisions of club membership. Evening training workshops were also created to instruct club officers in the responsibilities of leadership. Filling the circle drive with crowds and excitement, York's fifth annual Spring Fling offered games, prizes and music.

Using their Spanish in a modern context, these club members read translated American magazines and original Spanish periodicals.

LATIN CLUB
GERMAN CLUB

Native holidays offered members of York's language clubs an opportunity to pursue their interest in foreign cultures. The combined study of foreign customs with foreign fun climaxed the activities of each of these clubs. Mardi Gras, Weihnachtsfest, Mini-Fiesta, and Saturnalia celebrations added much to the meaning of cultural heritage.

Math Club officers explore the fields of probability and statistics at their annual crap game.

Learning experiences for students were not limited to the school day. Members of Weather Command, one of the new clubs at York, were taught to use meterological equipment skillfully. Through a second club addition, Photography Club, students learned photographic techniques. Chess Club members tested strategies in tournaments while members of Math Club explored the many fascinating facets of mathematics not available in school courses. Each organization, while affording recreation, also offered an important opportunity to learn.

MATH CLUB

WEATHER COMMAND

Collecting information for area news stations, Weather Command also provided predictions for York.

PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB

CHESS CLUB

Intra-squad drills and practice sharpens the skill of York's undefeated chess team.

OFFICE OCCUPATIONS

On-the-job experience and classroom study prepared Office Occupations and Distributive Education members for near-future vocations. Dealing primarily in marketing and sales techniques, DE students increased their personal knowledge and their career opportunities. OO members, practicing stenography and other clerical skills, trained for office employment. These "earning while learning" programs diminished the gap between school and job.

Competency in typing is a key to many office skills needed by students participating in OO.

DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATION

Charting the sale of a product helps the DE student visualize facts and figures.

Constructive criticism from teammates helps in perfecting an argument as these debaters prepare for interschool tournaments.

FORENSICS

The pros and cons of the present United States jury system were argued throughout the year by York's debate team. Vying with area schools on varsity and novice levels, debaters contested for individual and team honors. Similarly, Individual Events participants competed in twelve categories of interpretive and original speaking events. By succeeding in interschool tournaments, IE members as well as debaters won recognition from the National Forensics League.

The interpersonal relationships of duet-acting create new possibilities for verbal expression.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

Service set the pace for members of Girls', Home Ec., and Pep clubs. Needy children and convalescents received Christmas stockings made by members of both Home Ec. and Girls' Club. Pep Club sponsored several sock hops which followed various athletic events, and Girls' Club promoted "Barefoot in the Park," a traditional turnabout dance, events enjoyed by many York students.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

York sports enthusiasts formed their own groups as Ski Club and Girls' Athletic Association gave members the opportunity to pursue their athletic interests. During the annual spring and winter trips and on weekends, York skiers traveled to and accepted the challenge of Wisconsin and Colorado slopes. GAA sponsored intraschool contests between girls in volleyball, basketball, badminton, and bowling. Also organized by GAA were teams representing York in competition with area schools.

The lure of organized sports persuaded many girls to join GAA activities.

GYMNASTICS CLUB

Performing with style and grace, members of Gymnastics Club and Orchesis practiced expression through movement. In their spring production of Oliver, Orchesis choreographers included advanced as well as basic dance sequences to achieve a professional quality in their performance. Hours of concentration and practice again created a professional tone in the Gymnastics Club routines. The club, newly-formed through the interest of sixty girls, performed at boys' home gymnastics meets and sponsored a twenty-four member team in inter-school competition.

Y'S TALES

To capture a year in print—that is the purpose of a yearbook. Each picture, each copy block should identify a person, a mood, a thought as belonging to the year. It is a job for a staff that has a year to work.

Planning began in April, 1971; work began before the new school year started. Eight months of frustration, failure and success later, the 248th page was completed.

LAYOUT STAFF Barb Drallmeier, Rick Hayden, Kathy Oehler, Sue Loseff, Pat Jacoby, Maribeth Jozaitis, Ann McGee.

THE YORK-HI

"Extra, extra, read all about it!" Giving students a better opportunity to read "all about it" were two extra editions of The York-Hi that boosted the total number of issues for the year to fourteen. To widen the scope of the paper, the staff covered national and local events as well as school issues. By printing the paper at York, they were able to present the most current news available while becoming involved in the actual publishing process.

Art Staff members volunteered their time and talent, silk screening posters for many school activities.

ART STAFF

Colorful banners, posters and showcase displays livened the halls of York through the efforts of Art Staff. Responding to the needs of clubs and the athletic and academic departments, these talented students provided a constant stream of artistic creations for the groups' publicity. Numbered in their contributions to York's activities were drawings and other artwork for the newpaper and yearbook and the design for the course offering booklet.

CREW

Behind every drama cast stand many hard-working crew members. Trained in various facets of production, these students set the stage for the year's three dramatic presentations. Their knowledge of costuming, make-up, lighting, sound, and construction helped make each play a success. Though their contributions often went unheralded, the crew played a major role in York theatrics.

MATMATES

School pride and sport interest increased due to the efforts of York's Matmates, Flashers and Lettermen. The Grapplers were cheered on at home and away meets by the Matmates, a group of eight girls who volunteered their time and voices. Another group, the Flashers, recorded and flashed scores at home competitions. Assisting also at many sports events were Lettermen's Club members, representing York athletes.

"Go, Dukes, Go!" Applying pep techniques learned at summer camp, York cheerleaders led the raucous cries of support at athletic events. Pom pons in hand, the Dukettes also encouraged school spirit by performing at home football and basketball games. To promote good sportsmanship the girls in green held several potluck suppers with opposing schools before the Friday night games.

Cross Country

It had to be. Everyone knew it. From Sept. 1, everyone knew this was our year in cross country. Tradition declared that 1971 had to be the year of a state championship. York had won in 62, 65, 68, and had to win in 71. And when York wins, it goes all the way. First in DuPage County, first in the Peoria Invitational, first in the WSC, first in District, first in Sectional, and then, scoring a record total of 67 points – STATE CHAMPIONS. Fantastic! The most well-balanced team in York's history (Dennis Julison, the Dukes top man in state was York's fifth runner in the sectional) was headed by Seniors Al Anderson, Steve Croghan, John Carlson, and Juniors Julison and Jeff Klemann.

York's "third year" tradition may be in jeopardy, however, as Scott Brown and the other runners of this year's fourth-place Barons join Julison and Klemann. York will definitely be in the running again next year.

Football

After surprising many with an impressive shutout of powerful Willowbrook in their opening game, the Dukes could not put it all together for the rest of the year. Unable to build any offense, the gridders were continuously frustrated by the potent teams of the WSC. Although they denied R-B any offensive scoring and waged successfully against Maine, the Dukes could not cope with the rest of the conference teams and so finished with a 2 and 5 record.

Faring better, both the Barons and the Serfs finished their seasons leading the conference. The Barons rolled to a 7-1 record while the freshmen, under first year coach Mr. Corbett Howard, won their championship with their first undefeated season since 1966.

Basketball

Failing to live up to pre-season expectations, the Dukes fell short of nearly any kind of success for the year. Ending conference play with a dismal 3-11 record, York plummeted from last year's third place finish to seventh. Senior Keith Tilden and Steve Ellingson turned in fine season performances (Tilden lead in scoring and rebounds while Ellingson earned a second position in York's record book with a .789 foul-shooting average) but interest focused on next year's hopes. With Junior Ron Lorenz and Sophomores Pete Wanzung and Kevin Keever starting for the Dukes, York may well have been successful in building for next year.

Faced with the loss of two key players, the Barons recovered admirably, finishing with a 7-7 record for fourth place in conference.

Gymnastics

Rolling to a sixth place finish in the state meet, York's gymnasts compiled their finest record since York's 1961 state championship team. Losing only to Homewood-Flosmoor, Glenbard West and reigning state champion Hinsdale Central, the Dukes displayed impressive strength throughout the season, peaking at the state competition. Tremendous performances were turned in there by high bar champion Ross Olson, and trampolinists Sophomore Curt Austin and Freshman Jeff Rust who placed third and fifth respectively. Indicating the depth of the team behind these standouts was the all-time record high team score of 123.24.

Promising great things from future gymnasts, the Barons finished in a tie for second in the WSC, losing only once while winning twelve dual meets.

Wrestling

Two grapplers qualified for the Sectional tournament as individual efforts shone in a sixth place season for York. York captured fourth in district as Gary Moore won his weight class and Greg Goebel took second. Neither wrestler placed in sectional competition. Marty Bennett joined Goebel and Moore on the conference team. The team's excellent performance in the district meet was an appropriate finale for Coach Wachenheim who retired from coaching at the end of the season.

Injuries and a small team turnout resulted in a poor season for the Barons. Although finishing 2-9 in dual meet competition, the sophomores could claim fine records by many members including Jim Kaysing's 10-1 mark.

Tennis

But for the presence of state tennis power Hinsdale Central, York's netmen would have totally dominated WSC tennis. After sweeping through dual meets with a 12-1 record that included 7 perfect meets, the Dukes faltered at the conference meet slipping to third by a slim 1 point margin. Leading York at that meet, as they had done all season, Kit Miller took the second singles championship while second place finishes were fashioned by Ralph Tellefsen in third singles and the team of Skip Jones and Chuch Wolff in first doubles.

York's sophs were also frustrated by Hinsdale. Entering the conference meet with an excellent 11-1 record, the Barons could not upset the Imps and settled for second.

Track

The indoor-outdoor track season saw York in a tie for second as the Dukes finished third in winter competition and second in the spring. Totaling only a so-so record of 3-4 indoor, the Dukes peaked during the outdoor season winning both the Arlington Invitational and the Rockford Relays while taking second in the conference meet. Five Dukes were named to the conference team. Team leading scorer was Steve Pyrcioch and most valuable was Terry Granahan.

Dominating the WSC at the sophomore level, the Barons capped a perfect 15-0 season with a first place finish in the conference meet.

Baseball

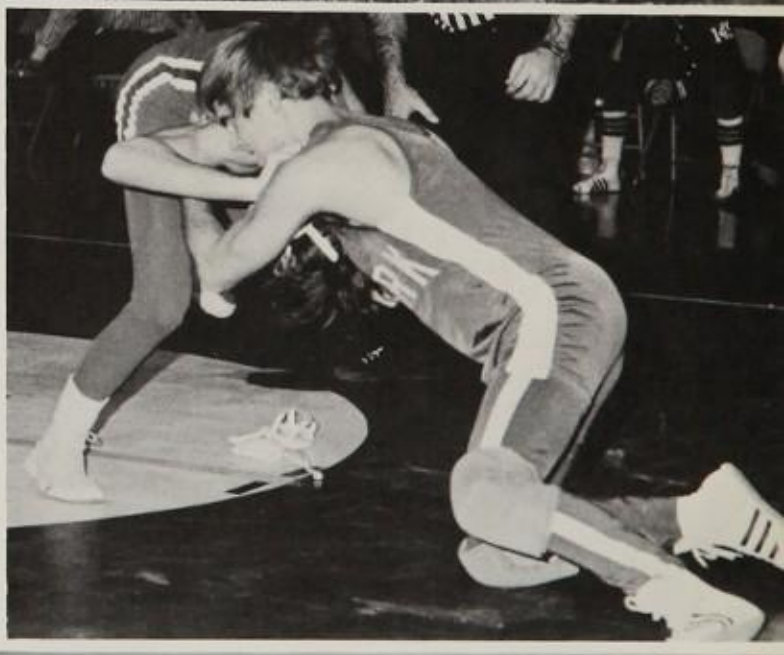
On the diamond, York fared better against non-conference foes than against conference teams. Starting regular play with a 3-win, 1-tie record in pre-season competition, the Dukes slumped to a 2-12 last place finish. Individuals found success as Frank Seter batted .319 and was named All-Conference while a stellar pitching effort was turned in by Bob Cerone who struck out 46 and compiled a 1.17 earned run average.

On the sophomore level, York found more success within the WSC, taking third with a 9-5 record. Special recognition was merited by Tony Belville who pitched a no-hitter against Glenbard.

Golf

Although suffering a disappointing 0-8 dual meet season, York's varsity golfers realized more success at the conference meet, tying R-B for fifth. This effort raised their last place position to sixth in the final WSC standing. Low Round for the year was carded by Steve Mrowinski (78) while George Binek lead the team with a low average of 83.

The Barons compiled an excellent 11-3 overall record and finished third in both the conference tournament and the final standings.



Where Anderson, Carlson, Croghan, Julison, and Lichty tread, can Klemann be far behind?

Joe Newton: the will and determination of the man is manifest in his team.

YORK WINS STATE!

Momentarily one step ahead of Steve Croghan, Junior Dennis Julison was York's top man in the State Meet.

How long can a Green Line be if it has only six men? Each of the 31 runners must contribute his talents to make a winning team.

No matter what the play, an 80-yard pass or a 1-yard plunge, success is totally dependent on team effort. Without his blockers, the individual runner can only fail.

Most Improved	Bob McConachie

No concentration – no success. Most Valuable Soph player, Tom Nelson, applies this to his game.

INTRAMURALS

1972 INTRAMURAL CHAMPIONS

Team	Record
Senior: Phil Bash	8-2
Junior: Fran McLennand	10-0
Sophomore: Tad Moore	7-3
Paul McDermand	7-3
Freshman: Bob Bullock	6-4
Scott Bryers	6-4
Greg Dvorak	6-4

Right: Form is no less important in intramurals than in any other level of competition. Below: Senior Fred Mowrer takes advantage of a defensive slip and gets off a clean jump shot. Opposite page: The talent of these players may not be as great as those of the varsity team, but their desire is just as strong.

DIVING TEAM

Sponsored by Miss Betty Bingham, two students formed a diving team and represented York in interscholastic competition. With no facilities at school, Darryl Hodges and Scott Seablom practiced either at Evanston High School, under the supervision of the Evanston coach, or at the Elmhurst YMCA. Making the work and inconvenience worthwhile, Seablom took sixth place at the WSC conference meet.

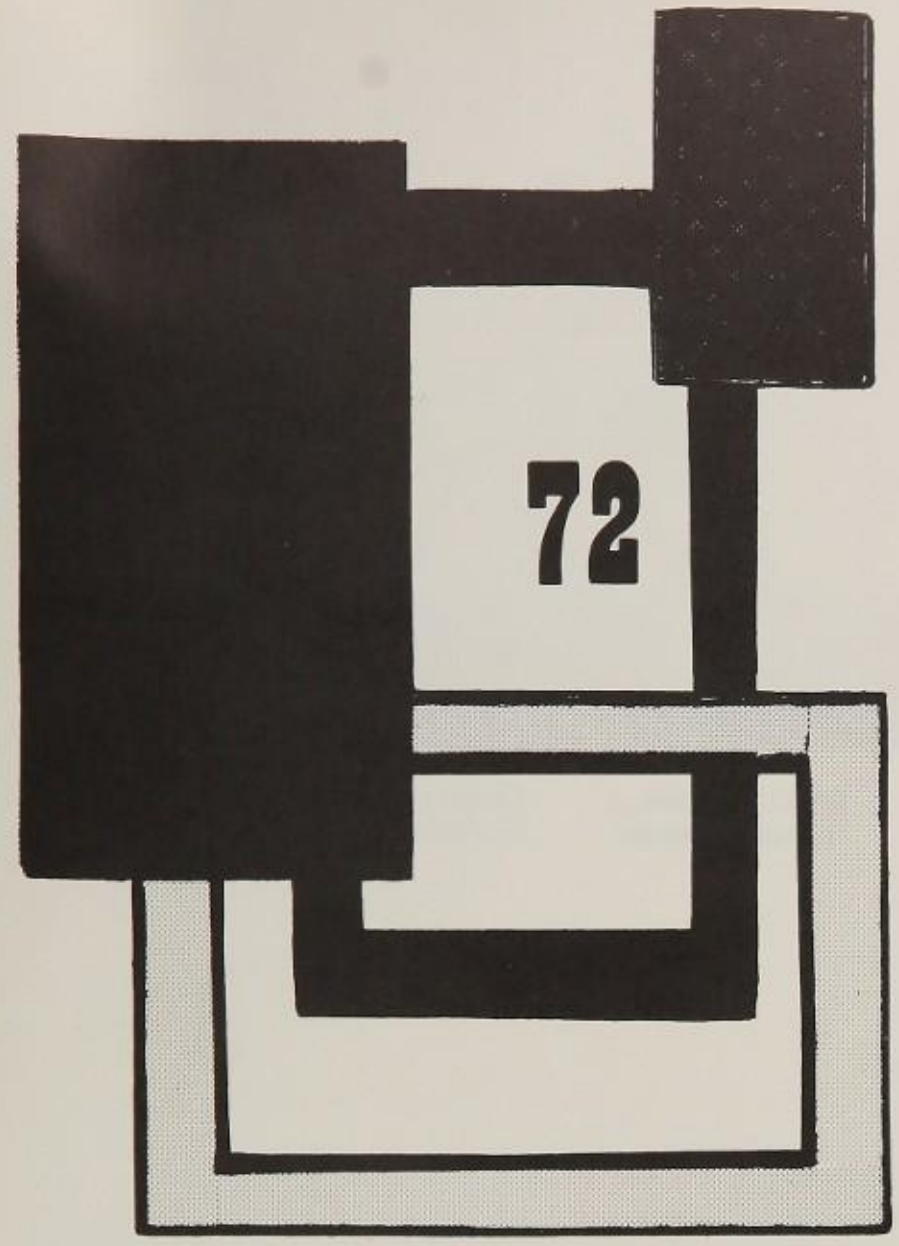
CLASS OF 72

October 1968
October 1971



Unique, as all classes are unique, yet typical, as all classes are alike, the Class of 72, having done much and seen more, now leaves York. As these seniors leave, they take with them a part of the school just as they leave something of themselves behind. York is not the same school it was when these seniors were freshmen—these students are not those who began high school in September of 1968. The influence of four years at York will never abandon these seniors—the influence of this class on York, whether perceptible or not, will have a lasting effect on the school. Neither school nor student are quite the same for having been together.

Now, for these, all the successes and failures of York are over. Their allotted time is finished. June 1972 marks the end. And yet . . .

> "Now this is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end. But it is, perhaps, the end of the beginning."

SENIOR BIOGRAPHIES

The traditional placement of senior's biographies within the Senior Section has, with increased class enrollment, become impossible. Therefore, the senior profiles have been placed in their own section beginning on page 224.

Readers of Y'S TALES 72:

To all of you who, either by accident or design, find yourselves reading this page—welcome! We, the editors of this book, have a personal message before we end the story of the year.

1972 saw Y'S TALES change in many ways. Most are quite obvious and we hope you approve of them. We felt that in order to best present this year, many traditional practices needed to be revised. Such revisions were not made without thought and discussion; neither did we seek change for change's sake. York's yearbook had become cumbersome—it needed revitalizing. That was our concept of our job. We do not think that we have solved all the problems—in fact, we may have created some new ones. But we do hope that we have begun the tradition of continual review of priorities and practices, keeping pace with the rate of change within the school itself.

One precedent we gladly follow is the acknowledgement of those who have helped us so much. First, we thank Mr. Leander Hagerty and all the photographers of Leander Studio. A yearbook portrays a year through pictures and these men provided the hundreds we required. We cannot, however, overlook the contributions of Brad Jonas who, literally on 30-minute notice, covered events we had neglected to schedule. His photos saved more than one embarrassing blank page. For invaluable aid in planning, budgeting and mechanics, we are greatly indebted to Mr. Edwin Hackleman, representative of Delmar, our printing company. Only his experience and knowledge kept us from deadly blunders.

Finally, and most importantly, we thank our advisor, Mrs. Sanders. She has guided us and put up with us—encouraging, correcting, checking each page and proof, telling us when to get to work and when to stop. Thanks again Mrs. S.

And so, we offer you your book. We apologize for any and all errors and we hope no one is offended by any mistake. This is our greatest concern; it is your opinion for which we wait. The final judgement of Y'S TALES 72 lies with you the students, teachers, and friends of York. If you are pleased, we have succeeded.

"They all were interwoven and interlocked, entwined in a thousand ways. And all the voices, all the goals, all the yearnings, all the sorrows, all the pleasures, all the good and evil, all of them together was the world."

Hermann Hesse

"Suddenly, – this moment. Here, now. I am here, and you. In this place, now we are together."

Karen,
Its been great knowin ya these past years. Have fun ar in Willowbrook.

Karen,
Science was really something else this year.
I'll never forget all those times you slipped! (with your language!) Oh well! Glad you came to W.B. Have fun this summer &
Take care of yourself!
Patti '77 RULES!!

Karen,
Been fun in English (1ta) I really liked sitting next to ya part of the year. You made English one of my favorite classes (except) for teacher Anne Millar

Good Luck at Willowbrook next year.
Nancy Meinicke

Kari,
As I said once before I can't write any stupid poems. So good luck and all that shit, I'll talk to ya this summer. Good Luck!! P.S. No booze this summer!
Karen K.

Kari,
Hope you like your school better next year. See you during the summer.
Love,
Margaret Bittner

Karen,
Have fun at Willowbrook
I know much you're going to miss Mr. Leenswart and our math room. HA HA But thats life. Luv
Peggy V.

Kari - come around over the summer.
Glad you were in my English class but too bad it had to be English! Have fun at Willowbrook and come back to York alot!
Love,
Shuna

- Kari,
Thanks for leaving me space!
Remember screwdrivers
and guys don't mix to well.
Too bad you had to move,
& I know you'll have fun over the summer with the kids from Willowbrook!
Keep in touch, Karen Horner

Kari,
You'll have to come over this summer. Hope you like Willowbrook. So bad you weren't in any of my classes this year.
